

News and Views . . .

and what have you

by BOB CRAIG

That was a real thriller Friday night, wasn't it. You could hear the leather popping all the way up in the press box. In case you are wondering how it feels for a former lamfordite to see them get defeated, I would be less honest if I didn't admit that I loved the game with rather mixed-up emotions. After covering the Pipers all season and having watched the Stamford players since they were freshmen, I have some idea of how parent must feel when their two sons play against each other in college.

Since someone had to lose, like everyone else in Hamlin, as glad to see the Pipers come out on top.

Of course all of the Pipers played a tremendous game, which if you saw the game was obvious, but if you were to pick out the top player who earned in the clutch performance when it was needed, you could probably have to call it tie between Robert Brandon and Gerald McCannies. Brandon with his pass interception and McCannies with his punt on the run when to do otherwise would have put the piers in a hole they might not have been able to get out of.

Did you notice how little the election was talked about Saturday after that was about all you could hear from Tuesday until Friday night.

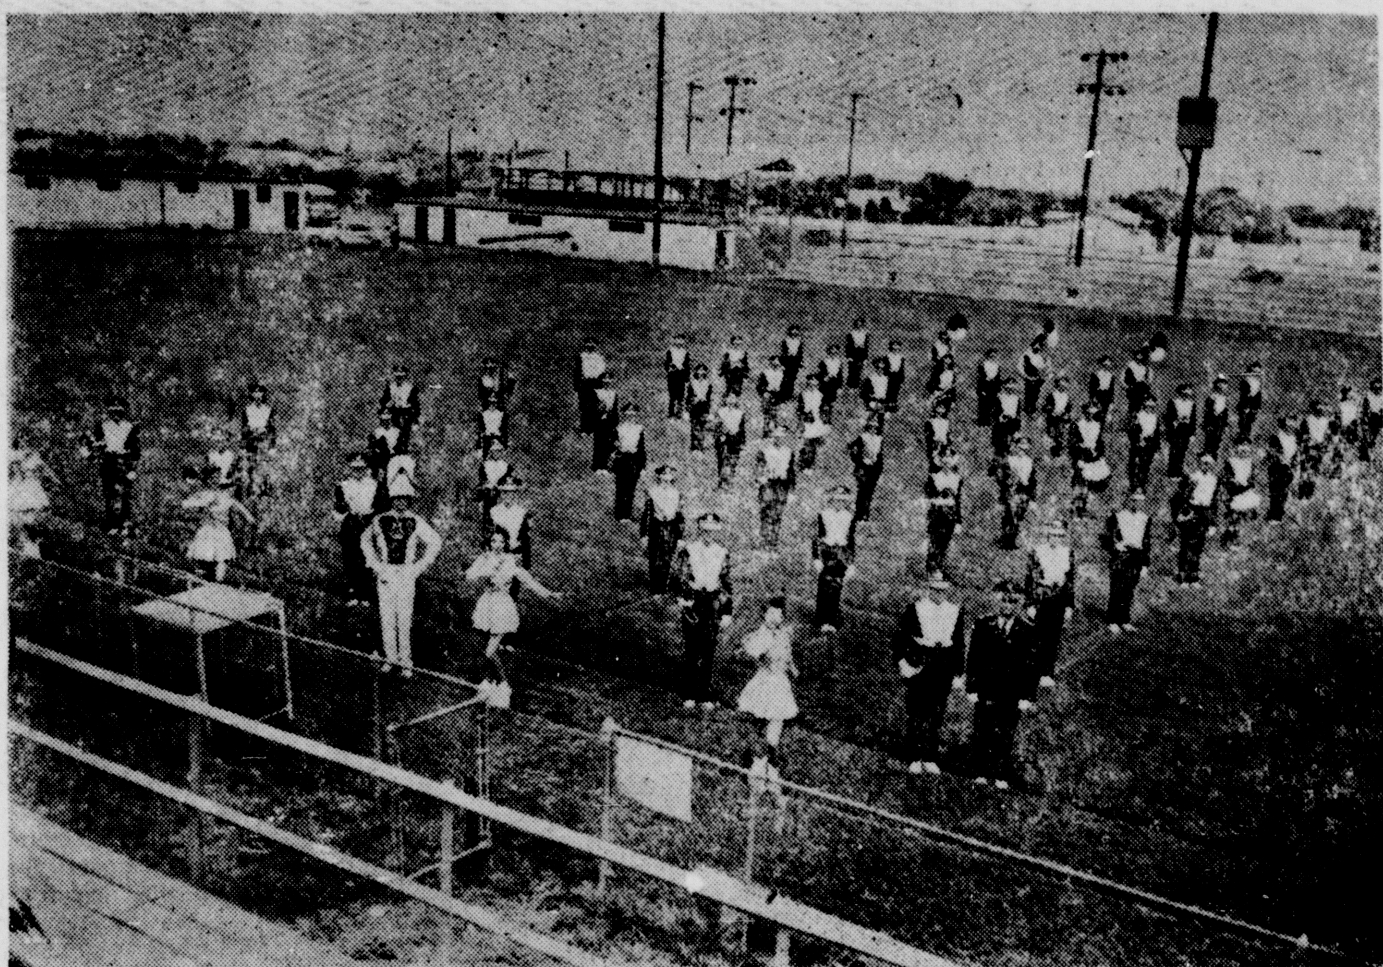

Speaking of the election — I remarked in this column last week that the vote in the presidential election was low — than the vote in governor's race. It seems that here in Hamlin alone around 100 ballots could not be counted in a race for president because a voter failed to scratch the candidates in the two minor races. The election judge might be able to guess the intentions of the voter, but the law states that the voters' intentions must be clear and these incorrectly marked ballots could be contested if counted.

We can't understand why the Texas ballot isn't changed so that the voters can just check the name that they want to vote for and not have to then marking out all of the names on the ballot that they don't want to vote for. This would help those who hold the elections since the ballots would be easier to count.

A few years back the ballot was designed so that you had your choice of methods, either scratching all of those you opposed or checking the one you wanted. Evidently this caused too much confusion and was discontinued.

We stated in an earlier column that very little fuss was being made over the amendments to the state constitution cause of the storm raised in the presidential race. With the vote on the amendments must have been true. We feel that the Herald did not carry enough information on them but the time seemed to pass away from us.

The voters in Stonewall county seem to have the Hospital District amendment connected with the Stonewall County Hospital Bond Election that they voted down in the Primary voting, since they voted on the amendment that would have created a hospital district in Lamar and Hidalgo counties and passed the other amendments.

ACCIDENT SUNDAY MORNING KILLS REBECCA MOSLEY, 55

Hamlin's second 1960 traffic fatality occurred near the city limits on Highway 92 shortly after midnight Saturday, when a Negro woman was struck by a car and killed instantly.

Mrs. Rebecca Mosley, 55, was hit while crossing the highway near a cafe on the east edge of the city.

Her death was ruled accidental by Justice of the Peace J. B. Eakin.

Eakin said the accident occurred early Sunday when the woman walked into the path of an oncoming car driven by Billy T. Deel, 27, of Hamlin. Deel said that he was meeting a car that did not dim their lights and did not see the woman until he had hit her. Deel was westbound and was meeting an eastbound car.

Eakin said the woman was crossing from south to north and walked in between the cars.

Police Chief John L. McCurdy who helped investigate the accident stated that the streets in that vicinity are very dark and attributed the unlighted streets as being partial cause of the accident.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 3 p.m. at the Oak Grove Baptist Church with the Rev. A. W. Washington officiating. Burial was in Hamlin East Cemetery under the direction of Hamlin Funeral Home.

Highlights

AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex.—Shell-shocked and exhausted from one of the hardest-fought general elections in decades, Texans now can get a second wind and turn to new issues and decisions.

Some of the most significant decisions ahead grow out of decisions made at the polls earlier this month.

As a result of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson's election to the vice presidency his senate seat will become vacant on or before Jan. 20. It's a highly coveted position, seldom up for grabs, since the winner of a six-year term can be fairly sure of holding it for life.

It is likely that the race for Johnson's post will be the first special election in Texas history to have a run-off. A 1957 law, called the Pool Bill, provided that in special elections for congressional vacancies there shall be a run-off if no candidate receives a majority of the votes in the first polling. Previously, special elections had been on a high-man-wins basis.

Many possible candidates are mentioned. Among them: John Conally of Fort Worth, Jack Cox of Breckenridge, Martin Dies Sr., of Lufkin, Congressman Joe Kilgore of McAllen, Wright Morrow of Houston, Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey, John Ben Sheppard of Odessa, John G. Tower, Johnson's Republican opponent in the general election, Attorney Gen. Will Wilson and Congressman Jim Wright of Weatherford.

It is unlikely that any candidate will make a public announcement until Senator Johnson officially resigns and Gov. Price Daniel sets the date for the special election. Under the law, the governor must call the election in no less than 30 days and not later than 90 days from the time the vacancy occurs.

If Congress is in session at the time the vacancy occurs, it would also be the governor's duty to name an interim senator to serve until a successor is elected. Governor Daniel already has said that former Sen. William Blakely would have first chance as such an appointment.

When the vacancy will occur depends entirely on Senator Johnson. There is speculation that he will not lay aside his senatorial toga until he takes the oath as vice president (Jan. 20). Many feel that his presence and assistance in organizing the Senate prior to that date would help get the incoming Democratic administration off to a good start.

MORE WATER AID IS GOAL—Gov. Price Daniel said he will ask the next Legislature to take action aimed at speeding up local water conservation projects.

Speaking to the Texas Water Conservation Association, the governor said he would urge more money for water projects and a more flexible financing program.

Marvin Nichols of Fort Worth, chairman of the Texas Water Development Board, urged that the present ceiling of $5,000,000 on any one water loan be raised to $15,000,000. Under the present water development program the state sells bonds to raise money to lend to local governments to help pay for water conservation construction. Lending is limited to one-third the total cost and $5,000,000 on any one project.

Nichols said the Water Development Board was "admittedly disappointed" in the small number of loans (eight for a total of $14,840,000) completed since the program was passed in 1957. Abundant rainfall has caused many local governments to lose a sense of urgency about water conservation, said Nichols.

Several speakers warned of the certainty of another drought. "Biggest problem in many cities by 1980 may be getting a drink of water," said one.

INSURANCE RATE HIKE REJECTED—State Board of Insurance voted down by a unanimous vote a proposed 30 per cent increase in auto insurance rates.

Board will re-study the problem in June, 1961. Until then the present rates will continue.

Board also turned down by a 2-to-1 vote a proposal by Chairman Penn J. Jackson to allow companies to make the merit rating system optional. It is asking for an attorney general's opinion on whether optional merit rating would be legal.

Board member Robert W. Strain said he felt an across-the-board raise in auto insurance rates would be unfair to law-abiding, accident-free drivers.

DPS MEMORIAL PRESENTED—A 6-by-8 foot bronze plaque commemorating Department of Public Safety men killed in line of duty is to be mounted in the lobby of the DPS Headquarters in Austin.

Private citizens paid for the plaque which was presented to Col. Homer Garrison Jr., DPS director, at an honor banquet.

Names of 21 men are inscribed on the plaque. Sixteen of these were killed in traffic accidents while on duty; two were killed by the ill-famed Clyde Barrow; three were shot to death by other outlaws.

CAN'T TAKE CAR FOR TAXES—A local taxing district cannot seize a person's personal car because he has failed to pay property taxes on it, the Attorney General's Department ruled.

However, the tax assessor still has plenty of ways to "get at" the car owner.

An automobile—one only—is part of a person's homestead, said the option and cannot be taken for forced sale to satisfy a tax claim. However, it said, the tax collector can get a judgment that will allow attachment and sale of a second car, or any other property not included in the homestead exemption.

SHOP AT HOME—State Highway Commission has reaffirmed its policy of using only U. S.-made materials for road and bridge materials construction in the state highway system.

Beginning January, 1961, all contracts for highway construction will include a provision that all materials furnished will be manufactured in mills located in the United States or its territories and possessions.

This policy was vigorously protested by representatives of industries of other countries at a hearing earlier this fall.

Policy will not apply to products finished in this country using some component parts furnished from abroad—such

JONES COUNTY ASC OFFICE PRESENTED CITATION AS OUTSTANDING OFFICE IN DISTRICT FOR YEAR

In an appropriate, informal ceremony, a United States Department of Agriculture Citation was presented to the Jones County ASC Office in recognition of its selection as the ASC County Office most outstanding in the 17-County District, in effective and efficient operation of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation programs for the one-year period ending July 31, 1960.

Present for the ceremony at the local ASC office and making the presentation were Bland Harrison, Stamford, Farmer-Fieldman of the District, and B. P. Davenport Jr., Stamford, Chairman of the State ASC Committee.

Harrison stated that the main purposes of the Incentive Awards Program are to provide an incentive to all offices and personnel to improve their performance, and to bring to the attention of the public the outstanding work of the ASC.

Harrison stated further that each year a selection of the outstanding office in each of the 15 Districts in the State is made by a committee composed of the State Administrative Office, Section Chiefs, Program Specialists, the respective District Farmer-Fieldman, and representative County Office managers. Also, a State Winner is selected by the State Office Incentive Awards Committee with the concurrence of the State Administrative Officer and the State ASC Committee.

Bell County was the State Winner for this period.

Harrison said that the selection is made on the basis of (1) Service to farmers; (2) Getting the work done; (3) Planning and organizing the work; (4) Morale; (5) Physical plant; and (6) Relationships, and that Jones County is to be commended for winning this coveted award because of the heavy workload, it being greater in the office than any other District.

Davenport made the presentation of Citations and cash awards to the entire personnel—committees, office manager, and office and field employees, stating that it was through the very efficient and effective approach to the various program responsibilities throughout the period that this honor was won.

Committees receiving awards were: Walter H. Cook, Hodges, vice-chairman who has an outstanding service record of some 20 years or more as a County Committee member; Raymond G. Rowell, Anson, who has served as Chairman of the county committee since his election in 1956; and George J. Smith, of Stamford, also elected in 1956, has served as vice-chairman and as a regular member of the Committee. In making the presentation to these County Committees, whose tenure of office expired on September 30, this year, Davenport said that this committee was recognized over the State for their outstanding performance record of handling the responsibilities in carrying out the various farm programs through the ASC Office.

Morris S. Jones, county office manager, who began his service with the ASC in 1938 upon graduation from A&M College, first as office manager in Baylor and Stonewall Counties before coming to Jones County as office manager in 1950, was cited for his quiet, fair and efficient manner of administering the affairs of his office and in his dealings with the farmers.

Individual citations and awards were presented to Jones and the following currently employed personnel: Roy Cozart, Frankie B. Myers, Lucile R. Perotti, Maude H. Pittman, Olin B. Potts, and Hazel I. White; and the following temporary employees: Delores C. Appling, Janis Bennett, Judy G. Carlton, Betty J. Davis, Joe A. Morrow, Alberta B. McDonald, Frederick M. Osment, and Betty N. Thompson.

Jones, in accepting the Citation for the County Office, said that he realized that it was only through unity of effort by all concerned that such an outstanding accomplishment was attained, and he expressed appreciation to the farmers in the County for their courteous helpfulness in the administration of the various programs, to the former County Committees, to the Community Committees, and to all office personnel—both regular and temporary, for their diligent and efficient approach to their responsibilities which made this occasion possible.

Jones introduced the present County Committees whose tenure of office began on October 1, 1960, and who were present for the ceremony: J. Noel Weaver of Neinda, chairman; A. Darwin Hill, Noodle, vice-chairman; and John E. Nix, Anson, regular member.

BY AMY ADAMS

AMY: In 14 years old and I do a baby sitting now and then. I hired by a lady to work 11 a day but that was cancelled so I worked whenever she needed me. She ran up a $14.50 sitting bill (29 hours) and never paid me. That was 6 months ago. What shall I do? I am going to buy school supplies clothes with the money.

Out on a limb

Out: If anyone could take advantage of a 14-year-old is beyond Tell your parents and if they collect, send me the name address of the lady (?) and I'll 'out on a limb'!

Amy: How do you handle a mother who favors one of your children over the other one?

My grandma comes, my boy and I go to see her and she sits on her lap and talk to her practically pushed away ignored for his sister, two years younger. My husband won't anything and I agree, because when you have to remind a mother to be nice to your child, that takes the cake. What you say to a seven-year-old who is hurting him? My mother-in-law makes no bones about the difference in remarks she makes to her and her actions. She's even got to my boy. It's not my gination working overtime cause outsiders have noticed it. I have been going on for about 10 years and I've had it. His sister is cute, but so is he. As I am no mother or father to advise me, I need your help.

It is your duty as a mother not to allow anyone to hurt your child. Regardless of which child she 'apple of her eye,' tell her firmly that to be welcome in her home, she must divide her affection equally. If she has an obligation, too, if she wants the love and respect that goes with the precious title 'Grandma'!

Amy: I am a widow 61 years old. I don't look it or act it if I must. I go to myself. I have a gentle friend whom I have been knowing three years. He doesn't bite anyone but me. He takes me out for dinner or anywhere else that I want to go. If he misses seeing me a day in town, he comes to see about me. He's never told me that he loves me and never says anything about marriage. I am very fond of him. Do you think he ever intends to marry me or is he just stringing me along? He doesn't drink or use bad language and he loves to go to church.

Just Wondering

Dear Wondering: His intentions sound honorable but I think he needs a 'gentle nudge.' The time is ripe for you to assert yourself. Since he loves to go to church, ask him to take you with him... for a walk down the aisle!

Dear Amy:

My son started to smoke about 3 months ago (against my wishes). He is sixteen and a half and I noticed that he is smoking about a pack a day. I want to limit him but, at his age, I don't know how much he should or shouldn't smoke. What do you say?

His Dad

Dear Dad: At his age, NONE!

Dear Amy:

What can I do about my husband? He had three heart attacks six years ago and doesn't get any compensation. A doctor's O.K. is necessary to get sick benefits but he won't go to a doctor. He says he would have been dead already if he would have gone to a doctor.

What can I do with him? I work but don't make much. I need his help to pay the bills. Please print the answer as soon as you can because he opens all my mail.

Ruth

Dear Ruth: If he won't go to see a doctor, get a doctor to come to him. And if the doctor thinks he is entitled to sick benefits, he will give his okay. The most foolish woman can manage a clever man but it takes a very clever woman to manage a fool!

32 Page Travel Brochure Released By State of Texas

AUSTIN—The release of a full-color, 32 page travel brochure on the State of Texas Highway Department.

D. C. Greer, State Highway Engineer, said the new brochure is specifically designed for free distribution to attract out-of-state tourists. First of its kind ever published in Texas, it is intended to serve as a showcase of Texas' scenic, historic, recreational, and cultural attractions.

Greer described the colorful brochure, which covers the entire state geographically, as "another milestone in the travel promotion program conducted by the Highway Department."

He said the next step in this program is the submission of a media advertising budget to the Texas Legislature, which meets in January. The Highway Department has asked, with the concurrence of the Texas Development Board, for an appropriation of $300,000 a year for the next two years to advertise the tourist attractions of Texas.

"The media advertising program," Greer said, "is a necessity to halt the appalling downward trend of the Texas tourist industry. The amount we will ask for media advertising is $100,000. The amount we will ask for media advertising is $100,000. The amount we will ask for media advertising is $100,000."

County Agent Warns Against Arsenic Acid

Grazing cattle on cotton fields which have been defoliated with arsenic acid is not advisable, says Jones County Agent, Kirby Clayton. Many questions regarding the use of arsenic acid and the grazing of cotton fields after arsenic acid has been applied as a defoliant have been coming into the county agent's office here of late and here in brief are the general precautionary measures regarding its use.

It is not entirely safe to graze livestock on cotton fields which have been treated with arsenic acid neither is it safe to use the cotton bolls as a feed. Cottonseed for both planting and livestock feed are thought to be entirely safe. Where arsenic acid has drifted over to garden or fruits, it renders the vegetables unsafe for human consumption.

There is no apparent danger from grazing livestock on cottonfields after the use of pentachlorophenol. Where small amounts of pentachlorophenol have drifted on to gardens or fruits, there is no apparent danger for human consumption but the objectionable odors sometimes render them unfit for eating.

Other questions on the use of cotton defoliants and dessicants may be referred to your county agents office in Anson.

WTU Co. Wins National Honor For Safe Driving

National honors for an outstanding safe driving performance have been won by the employees of the West Texas Utilities in the Public Utilities Group 1 Division of the 29th National Fleet Safety Contest conducted by the National Safety Council.

Group 1, in which West Texas Utilities was the first place winner, was composed of the motor vehicle fleets of 40 major American utility companies. In this group, which was the largest in the contest, the vehicles of each of the competing fleets operated 175,000 miles or more per month during the year ending June 30, 1960.

The WTU fleet averaged 321 vehicles and more than 330 drivers. They were awarded first place in the Public Utilities Group 1 Division at ceremonies held in Chicago last week as part of the 48th National Safety Congress and Exposition.

The award is based on the employees safe driving record for the period July, 1959, through June, 1960. During that year, WTU employees operated 5,125,395 miles with a rate of one-fourth of an accident per 100,000 miles of operation. Winners were determined after an inspection of the records by an auditor representing the National Fleet Safety Contest Committee.

"Credit for this national recognition in safe driving goes to our employees who operate the company vehicles," stated Cal Young, WTU President. "This is an honor of which we are very proud."

Ask Amy

BY AMY ADAMS

HE'S TAKING HER FOR A 'RIDE'

DEAR AMY:
I'm 26 years old and have three children, own my own home, car, furniture, etc. I was divorced five years ago. I met a young man, 25 years old, and as bad as it may seem, I fell in love with him and have been living with him for the past two years. He has been married before and divorced. Everybody thinks we are husband and wife. We started out three times to get married. Had blood tests and the license but never quite made it to the preacher.
He never buys me anything but we have plenty to eat. Do you think he is doing me wrong. I am almost crazy with worrying. I know I should quit him, but, Amy, I love him so much. Please advise me and I will be forever in your debt.

Mrs. O. H.
Dear Mrs. O. H.:
Why didn't you make it to the preacher??? If he wanted to make an honest woman out of you, he'd quit stalling. If he de-tours on the fourth try, let him 'get lost!' . . .

Dear Amy:
Ole! for 'Animal Lover.' If bullfighting is a sport (where death is the only victor) in this modern day and age, then I'm for banishing this sadistic spectacle from the face of the earth. If Animal Lover wants to start a crusade, I'm with him.
Another Animal Lover . . .

Dear Amy:
How right you are when you say that Americans are the ones who cheer for the bull. I attended a bullfight in Mexico and cheered for the bull all the way. And you know what? He won! The matador was knocked head over heels and had to be carried off (thank God he wasn't seriously injured). It was horrible to watch the way the bull was wounded again and again to weaken him so that the matador, in his fancy silk tights, could kill him with a minimum of risk. The brutality of the whole thing was disgusting.
Disgusted . . .

Dear Amy:
In our neighborhood there is a girl who gets pleasure out of stealing other girl's boy friends. Whenever she sees one of us with a new boy (or our boy friends) she immediately comes over and flirts with them and does everything in her power to take them away. At first it wasn't too bad but now it's getting monotonous having her take away our boy-friends, or at least trying her best to.

We've asked her to stop but then she does it even more. Please give us a few hints on what to do.
Wallflowers because of 'Her.'
Dear Wallflowers:
Ignore her! There's always one in every crowd. When the word gets around that she is getting ahead by stepping on everyone's toes, your troubles will be over. And I'm willing to bet that will be pretty soon. . . .

Dear Amy:
I am a wife and a good mother of my two daughters, but I have one problem that I would like you to help me with. My husband is always drinking. No matter where he goes, he can't stay out of those darn 'beer gardens.' We have been married for 10 years and that's all he's been doing is living on beer.
I told him to cut down on his drinking because when he comes home drunk, he always beats up one of our daughters. I told him I was going to leave him, but he thinks I'm kidding him. I don't want to leave him because I keep thinking of my two daughters. If this keeps up, I will have to because he has me a nervous wreck. Please tell me what to do?
A Disgusted Mother

Dear Amy:
Everyday I hear from mothers and wives who have been helped by ALCOHOLICS ANONYMOUS or AL-NON. Get in touch with these organizations. With your husband's cooperation, they will show him that the only 'garden' that is worth his time and money is the one in his own back yard! . . .

PERSONAL TO TROUBLED:
Your father-in-law is crude and your mother-in-law is running a close second. If you want to stay safe and sane, keep away from them!

Tips Given on Storing, Cooking, Serving Vegetables

You get the most from vegetables when you treat them right—as you store, cook and serve them in daily meals.
Tips on how to do this are suggested by Mory Y. Newberry, Jones County Home Demonstration Agent. First of all, freshness counts. Tired or limp and wilted vegetables have lost nutrients as well as flavor and appearance. Keep vegetables as fresh as possible by putting them in the refrigerator when you get home from the store or garden. Root vegetables, such as potatoes, dried onions, winter squash, parsnips, and rutabagas need not be refrigerated.
Frozen vegetables can lose nutrients and quality too, when the temperature gets too warm. Store packages at 0 degrees F. or lower.
Remember that you can wash, soak and cook water soluble nutrients away. Never soak pared vegetables before cooking. To cook, use the smallest amount of water possible only enough to prevent vegetables sticking as they steam.
Avoid violent boiling of vegetables. After the food comes to a steam, reduce the heat to the lowest temperature required to maintain the steaming. This helps keep vegetables whole and saves food value.
Don't stir vegetables as they cook. This puts extra air in the vegetables and destroys certain vitamins.
To preserve color, cook green vegetables in covered utensils and cook only until tender.
For other tips on how to get the most from your vegetables, get a copy of B-923, "Vegetables, Selection, Care, Cooking" from the home demonstration agent.

In case some of the townspeople are wondering what all the noise was about Friday night, it was the students of HHS celebrating our victory over Stamford. After the ball game all of the students and other Piper boosters ran down the middle of Lake Drive doing a victory march. Mr. Cade, city policeman, was nice enough to direct traffic so that the students might have the after-game victory march.

Mrs. Dewey Nunley, a former student of HHS, is now doing her practice teaching in Hamlin High School. She is an English major and French minor. Mrs. Nunley is teaching senior English as her practice teaching. Following this requirement she will receive her degree from North Texas Teacher's College. While a student in HHS, she was exceptionally active in many extra-curricular activities.

A Greenhand initiation was held by the Future Farmers of America Chapter on November 7. Twenty-four new members were initiated into the Greenhand Chapter. There are forty-one members enrolled in the regular FFA Chapter. Only first-year members are eligible for the Greenhand Chapter.

The annual football banquet will be held in the HHS gym Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. This banquet is held in honor of our football team and its coaches. At this time "Football Hero" and "Football Sweetheart" will also be recognized.

Mrs. Camille Simmons is in charge of decorations. She is aided by girls of the pep squad.

Mrs. Edith Carter, sponsor of the HHS yearbook, stated Monday that approximately one-third of the annual had been completed and mailed. More pages will be sent in by December 1. Re-takes of pictures arrived this week and more swapping and trading has been taking place.

Hints Given on Amount of Turkey Needed for Meals

Homemakers shopping for turkey often ask how much to buy. Mary Y. Newberry, Jones County Home Demonstration agent offers some suggestions on this problem.

Small turkeys have a larger percentage of bone than do larger birds. Allow 3/4 to 1 lb. of turkey for each serving.

For each serving of roasted turkey quarter or half, or raised drumsticks or thighs, cut from large birds, allow 1-2 to 3-4 pound of ready to cook weight. If you are expecting your family and guests to have big appetites, you may need to allow more than one serving per person.

Too, you may want planned leftovers to take care of some extra holiday meals. If so, make allowances as you shop.

For more information on buying, preparing and cooking turkey, ask for a copy of the Extension Bulletin 201 "Let's Eat Turkey" at the agent's office.

Mail Carriers To Distribute Survey Cards

Rural mail carriers for the Hamlin Post office began leaving some livestock survey cards along their routes on November 16.

"Information reported on these cards is used to set the yearly inventory of livestock and poultry on Texas farms," Postmaster Perry H. Sparks explained.

In distributing the cards, rural pick boxes at random along their routes. "This means that not every box will get a card," Sparks said. "For this reason, it's important for everyone who gets a card to return it filled out so that USDA can get a true sample of the State's livestock holdings."

Carriers assisting with the survey are Andrew B. Rowland on route 1, Jack S. Russell of Route 2, and Z. H. Boner of route 3.

Facts and figures secured in this survey are the basis for the Texas and National pig crop report and inventories of livestock and poultry on farms as of the first of the year. Stockmen and many others use this information in making business decisions.

COUNTY CHRISTMAS SEAL DRIVE NOW UNDERWAY -- $2,982 QUOTA

The Christmas Seal Campaign for Jones County launched this week as residents of the county received seals through the mail Monday.

The Jones County quota for 1960 is $2,982.00. The quota is based on the county's population.

Mrs. W. L. Hunter Jr., executive secretary of the Jones County Tuberculosis Association, said this week that last year's contributions were considerably more than usual and Hamlin led the County in the amount given. Mrs. Hunter expressed appreciation on the part of all the association for the fine support given by the Hamlin people in this effort.

Others from Hamlin serving on the executive committee are John C. Bryant, president; Mrs. E. M. Wilson, second vice president and chairman of the Seal Sale; Mrs. Clyde Lewis, recording secretary; Lennie Greenway, treasurer and Mrs. O. H. Weaver.

Mrs. Ed Bailey, Mrs. John Ed Day, Mrs. A. A. Hackley, Dr. E. D. Perrin, Bryant, Miss Greenway and Mrs. Weaver are on the board of directors.

Three sheets of the colorful seals were included in each mailing along with letter and a return envelope for making contribution to the Jones County Tuberculosis Association. The seals are $1.00 per sheet. Of each dollar that is given, 82 cents remains in the county to fight tuberculosis.

Warning Issued Against Grazing After First Frost

The first frost of the winter should be here before long, and when it comes it could mean trouble for livestock producers. Johnsongrass and sorghum sometimes develop a high prussic acid content after a frost, and this is very dangerous to livestock.

Kirby Clayton, county agent, explains that certain chemical changes occur in the frost wilted plants, and these changes produce the prussic acid. The poison acts quickly and can kill an animal within a very short time after the damaged plant is eaten. Whether a poisoned animal can be saved depends upon how quickly a veterinarian can get to it.

Frosted Johnsongrass or sorghum should not be grazed until it is completely dry, warns Clayton. If it is ready to cut before a frost, it may be cut the first day after the frost. Even so, care must be taken to see that it is completely dry before bailing.

Silage is another way to use the frosted plants. Generally enough prussic acid is lost during the ensiling process, and as silage is removed and fed, to make it safe to livestock. Animals shouldn't be allowed to self-feed from a silo filled with frosted sudan or sorghum. If there is any doubt about the silage it should be tested. This may be done by a local veterinarian or by feeding the silage to one or two inferior animals.

Pipers Defeat Bulldogs In Defensive Thriller, 8-7

The Pied Pipers closed out the football season here Friday night with a thrilling finish by edging the Stamford Bulldogs, 8-7, in a tremendous defensive battle.

The dads of the Pipers players were honored before the contest and were treated with seeing the Pipers defeat the Bulldogs for the first time since 1949.

All of the scoring was confined to the first period with both clubs battering it out on defense the remaining three periods.

The Bulldogs took a 7 point lead midway in the first period and Hamlin came back late in the same period to take advantage of a Bulldog fumble on the Stamford 15-yard line. Four plays later quarterback Mike Bond carried across from the one. For the all-important two-pointer, Bond faded to his right and lobbed a high pass just over the head of a Bulldog defender and into the awaiting arms of end Jerald McCaulley.

The Pipers were in scoring position again in the third period when Robert Brandon intercepted a Stamford pass returning it 20 yards to the Bulldog 44 at which point the Bulldogs were penalized 15 yards to the 29. The Bulldogs recovered a Piper fumble on their 23 to halt the drive.

The Bulldogs had a 64-yard tally called back when they were offside. Brandon killed another Stamford threat when he intercepted a Bulldog pass in his own end zone.

Good punting by McCaulley helped keep the Pipers out of trouble. He punted for 50, 38, 26, 34 and 34 yards with one of the 34 yard punts being kicked on the run after a bad snap from center.

Fullback Tommie Lee was the top ground runner for the Pipers with 27 yards in 13 carries. Tailback Gerloff for the Bulldogs was the big ground threat with 93 yards on 20 attempts.

Bond completed two of six passes for 72 yards and connected on the first four attempted.

The Pipers ran 51 plays from scrimmage and the Bulldogs scried 56 plays.

Stamford took the opening kick-off with Gerloff returning it to the Bulldog 21. With third down and one on the 30, the Bulldogs elected to go for the yardage with Gerloff picking up a yard to spare. Later with the ball on the 40 and the Bulldogs facing a third and 12 situation, quarterback Tommy Dodd passed to end Jimmy Haas for a 42-yard gain. The Bulldogs drove to the Piper one on short yardage plays and Gerloff went over his right tackle for the score. Wingback Jerry Moritz kicked the point after that put the Bulldogs out in front, 7-0, with four minutes left in the first quarter.

Taking the kick-off on their 34, the Pipers failed to gain and punted from their 37 with the ball going out-of-bounds on the Bulldog 13.

After picking up two yards to the 15, the Bulldogs fumbled in their backfield with Robert Woodruff recovering for the Pipers on the Bulldog 15.

Newberry carried for three yards, Bond was held for no gain and Lee powered his way for six yards. With a first down on the one, Bond sneaked in for the score and then passed to McCaulley for the all-important two-points.

After the kick-off the Bulldogs failed to make a first and punted from their 32 with the Pipers taking over on their 31.

Picking up two first-downs, the Pipers moved to the Bulldog 40-yard line before giving the ball up on downs. Facing a fourth and two situation, Bond attempted to pass and was thrown for a four-yard loss.

After exchanging three punts the Pipers ended it up with the ball on their 23 and ran three plays to the 31 as the half ended.

Bond took the second half kick-off and returned it 22 yards before fumbling with Brandon recovering on the 32. Failing to make their first, McCaulley punted 26 yards to the Bulldog 38.

The Bulldogs picked up a first-down on their 48 and on fourth down with two yards needed they gambled and lost with the Pipers taking over on their own 43-yard line.

In trying to pass, Bond was thrown for five and ten yard losses, pass interference was ruled against Stamford at the 43 on the next pass. Bond was set back three yards and Newberry gained three yards with Bond being thrown for a 12-yard loss trying to pass again. McCaulley punted 34-yards to the Bulldog 36. He was forced to punt on the run when the snap went over his head and he was unable to run the ball out.

Gerloff broke over his right tackle as a shower of red flags were thrown and raced 64-yards to pay dirt. The Bulldogs were off-sides and the play was called back. Dodd was thrown for a six-yard loss trying to pass and Brandon intercepted a long pass thrown by Gerloff and returned it 20 yards to the Bulldog 44 from where Stamford was penalized 15-yards back to their own 29.

Hamlin drew a 5-yard delay of game penalty and Lee powered his way for 11 yards on runs of six and five yards. Newberry tum led with the Bulldogs recovering on their 23.

Picking up four first downs, the Bulldogs moved the ball to the Piper 24. From there, Gerloff lost three and was held for no gain before Dodd tried for the big play. Two Hamlin defenders and the extended receiver went up together in the end zone with Brandon coming down with the ball.

Putting the ball in play at the 20, the Pipers failed to make a first and McCaulley punted to the Bulldog 39.

Gerloff broke over his left tackle for 24 yards before being pulled down on the Piper 37. A clipping penalty cost the Bulldogs a net loss of eight yards and they failed to make their first by inches with the Pipers taking possession on their 28.

The Pipers overcame a 15-yard penalty with a 37-yard pass from Bond to Jim Cooper for 37 yards that kept the ball in their possession with the clock running out. From the Bulldog 45, Brandon carried for three, Lee drove for two, four and one yard gains to give the Pipers a first-down on the 35. Bond ran out the clock to give the Pipers their 8-7 victory.

'Help Me, Mother'

Ed. note: This is the third in a series of four articles which originally appeared in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, August, 1953, and which are reprinted here with the permission of that magazine. Entitled "Help Me, Mother, Help Me", the following was written by Dorothy Virginia Smith.

After Robby and the baby had been put to bed, I came down stairs to get Don and Sherry. I found them sitting at the kitchen table saying their rosaries. When I saw them, their heads bowed, I felt ashamed. Here my children were doing what I should be doing—praying. I put my arms around them, and together we finished the rosary.

The next morning everything seemed unreal. I lay in my bed telling myself that it had been a nightmare. Then I saw the bunk beds, and found myself crying again. My eyes were swollen almost shut from crying most of the night. My head throbbed unmercifully. I finally dragged myself out of bed and went downstairs to heat the baby's bottle. When I went to the baby's room, I almost expected to find her dead, but she was lying there cooing and kicking. As soon as I had fed the baby, I went into Robby's room. Ted was sitting on the bed beside Robby, holding his hand. He looked up at me and said, "He's worse, Virginia. I know he is worse than the baby." I couldn't stand it. I just walked out of the room and went downstairs to fix breakfast. Three trays had to be prepared, for the children were not to get out of bed. I drank a cup of coffee and fixed Ted a man-sized breakfast he'd never eat.

After a cup of coffee, Ted left with a list of supplies we would need—masks, hospital gowns, antiseptic, pans, hypo-dermic syringe, and needles. Before he came home, he had his chest X-rayed. Then he hurried home so I could have mine done. Our X-rays, it turned out, were all right, but we would have to be careful to avoid infection.

I immediately began changing the house into a hospital. An antiseptic pan was placed in the baby's room. The clothes hamper was moved into the hall to make a table for the box of sterile masks. A large bag was hung on the wall as a container for used masks. I hung a hospital gown outside the baby's door. A large kettle was put on the stove to sterilize dishes and baby bottles. Diapers, blankets, baby clothes, sheets—in fact, everything that came out of the baby's room had to be sterilized. The job ahead seemed superhuman.

In the afternoon the doctor came, and after he had given Christine her second shot of streptomycin, he went in to examine Robby, who still lay, feverish and hot, on his bed. I stood and watched as the doctor listened to his heart and tested his reflexes. Then he picked up his bag and walked downstairs. I followed. At the foot of the stairs, he turned to me and said, "Robby has to go to the hospital." My little tough cowboy, Ted was right—Robby was the worst. "Oh no," I said. "You can't take Robby away from me now. He'll die. He's never been away from me. Please - -" I started to cry.

The doctor walked into the living room. Finally he turned to me and said, "It's not a question of what you or I want. It's a matter of life and death. He must have a spinal tap right away. I think he has tubercular meningitis."

I didn't call Ted right away—I couldn't. Robby was the one Ted would pick up in his arms and run away with when I went to spank him for some mischief. He would wash Robby's marks off the wall before I could see them. He would do anything to protect his Robby. Now I had to tell him Robby had to go to the hospital.

At five o'clock that afternoon, I couldn't stand it any longer. I called Ted and asked him to come home. It seemed he was there, his arms around me, in minutes. "I knew it," he said.

The phone started to ring.

as friends and relatives called me to see if what they heard was true. Some were not afraid of contagion, and they came to help us that night. Eddie and Jessie Blade, friends of ours, and my brother, Bob and his wife. They took over and fed the children, sterilized bottles, and tried to restore some order to our completely disrupted household. We bundled Robby up in his blue snow suit, a suit I had bought him in the fall and which he had hardly had a chance to wear. I shook all over. If Robby had meningitis, he would be hospitalized for months and his chances of recovery were too slim even to think about. The worst of it all was that I could not stay with him. He was to be put in isolation. If he had meningitis, we could only see him twice a week and then through a glass door. We tried to explain to him on the way there that he was going to a hospital to get better, but how do you explain to a four-year-old that he must be separated from his Mommy and Daddy? He didn't say much, and when we were on the elevator going up to the isolation ward, his eyes were filled with tears and he flung his arms tightly around Ted's neck.

A nurse took Robby from Ted's arms and walked into a room and closed the door. Another nurse and an intern followed, and then we heard Robby screaming for his Daddy. Ted gave me a pitiful look. I tore a handkerchief to shreds while I waited. When the nurse came out, she handed me his clothes and his blue snow suit and told me to go home, that the specialist would call me as soon as he made the spinal tap. Robby's screams had stopped. Before I could leave the hospital, I peered through the small glass window. The sight tore me to pieces. Robby was sitting in a crib with his legs dangling through the bars and his little pinched face pressed tightly up against them, sobbing quietly. "I want my Daddy."

Another waiting period began. Our doctor gave the baby her shot and waited with us. I don't know what we would have done without him through our ordeal. He came at a moment's notice, and he worked and worried over our children as if they were his own. The call came. Robby's spot had penetrated a blood vessel and shot germs into the blood stream, but he did not have meningitis! I could hardly believe it. "When," I asked eagerly, "can we take him home?" I was ready to go right then. The specialist said Robby was still a very sick boy and would have to stay in the hospital for a while. As he spoke, I could hear Robby screaming in the distance. I didn't tell Ted that. And I didn't sleep that night. I kept hearing those screams.

On Friday, I learned that Robby could come home, but must be kept in complete isolation. He was being sent home only because the hospital could not keep him. He was a very serious TB case, and the hospital did not have the necessary facilities.

Mother stayed with the other children while Ted and I rushed out the door like mad people to get Robby. On the way down, we wondered what he would say when he saw us.

We gave the nurse Robby's clothes and sat down to wait. The door opened and a nurse came out carrying him in her arms. He looked as though he had lost ten pounds. His lips were parched and cracked from refusing even water from the nurses. But worst of all, there was no recognition on his face.

No "Hi, Daddy," no kiss for Mommy, no smile. Just a little boy too sick to care, Ted carried him tenderly to the car and placed him on my lap. I wrapped my arms around him and kissed his forehead—his temperature was 104, the nurse had said. He kept his eyes open, the whole trip home and spoke only once. That was when a car was driving very slowly in front of us. He turned his head toward Ted and in a weak voice said, "Beat that car, Daddy." When we passed it, Robby relaxed a little in my arms and whispered, "You're a good Daddy." Ted and I exchanged glances, both of us on the verge of tears.

I tucked Robby in his own bed. Then I gave him a glass of water. He gulped it down so fast he choked. Then a glass of milk, and more milk. He was almost dehydrated. I might have known he wouldn't drink or eat in the hospital. He'd always been the most stubborn of our children. I tried to get him to eat, but he was too sick and too weak.

That evening the doctor came to give Christine her shot of streptomycin and then he went into Robby's room to give him his shot. It was to get them twice a day for a month. When the doctor came out of

LITTLE COLONEL

By Bob McKinley

Robby's room, I asked, "How is he?" He didn't answer, just shook his head. I sat beside my son for a long time, then, holding his hand, until the baby started to cry and I had to leave him to warm a bottle for her. Ted had tucked the two older children in bed and had gone to check his gasoline station. I was all alone, and after I had fed the baby and placed her back in her bassinet, I went downstairs to sterilize her bottles. I was so tired I felt numb all over. Suddenly a terrible fear gripped my heart. Robby! My Robby was going to die! He was upstairs dying right now! I dropped the bottle I was washing, raced upstairs, and fell on my knees beside his bed. I felt his forehead. He was hotter than ever before, and his little face was scarlet. His eyes were half open, but he couldn't see me. He lay there motionless. My heart almost stopped beating. My son was dying. I called the priest, sobbing into the phone. "Oh Father, please come." Then Peggy Sigley, a neighbor, "Peggy," I cried, "Robby's awfully bad. Pray. Pray as you've never prayed before, and call everyone you know and ask them to pray." Then I ran back to my son and fell on my knees beside him. Soon the priest was beside me. Then Ted came, and after one look at the priest and me on our knees beside Robby's bed, he knew, too, and he knelt with us. And then I had a strange, unreal feeling of other prayers being offered up for Robby.

Ted and I knelt for what seemed an eternity, our lips moving in prayer. We never took our eyes off our son, who lay there so motionless. Finally Robby began to stir, and the flush began to fade from his face. I held my breath. Is this it? I asked myself. Is this the end? He raised himself up on one elbow, and in a weak, shaking voice said, "I want a bologna sandwich." I looked at Ted, and then I almost knocked him down rushing to the kitchen. My hands shook as I cut the sandwich in four small pieces. I held it out to Robby as though I were offering him a slice of the world. He took one look at it and with a disgusted grunt said, "I wanna big bologna sandwich." "Ted," I said incredulously, "did you ever hear anything more beautiful?" Nothing in my whole life will ever sound so good. I looked up and murmured, "Thank you, dear Jesus—for giving me back my son." After Robby ate his "sandwich," I took his temperature. It was 97.2. A miracle had happened right before my eyes.

After he was sleeping peacefully, I called Peggy to tell her the good news and to thank her for her prayers. And then it sounded as if New Year had just been ushered in. I heard whoops of joy over the phone, and the noise was so loud, I had to hold the phone away from my ear. Later she told me she had called the neighbors and asked them to pray. The word had gone from house to house, to everyone who knew us, and many who did not. All had asked their God to spare Robby Paul Smith. I shall never forget what those people did for me that night.

The next day was Saturday. It was hard to believe that just a week ago, I had brought Christine home from the hospital with the hope that everything would be all right. One week ago I was hugging and kissing the children, even sleeping in Robby's bed to comfort him. Now we were afraid even to touch one another. Every time I went into the two isolated rooms, I had to wear a gown and a mask, and when I had to dip my hands into the basin of disinfectant and then to the bathroom and wash them thoroughly with water, Robby would take off my mask. He would also beg us to schedule was. If Ted came home and said, "Let's go on a picnic," I would let the dishes lie in the sink, gather up our brood, and off we would go. Nothing ever bothered me. Now everything bothered me. I was running just to get essentials done.

The baby, who had been so good up to now, started crying, and oh, how she could cry. The doctor said not to let her cry—it was bad for her spot. Imagine having a three-month-old baby you can't let cry. I was always there, holding her in my arms, before her first cry had died away. I tried everything to please her, but nothing would pacify her except my presence. At night I would push the bassinet until she fell asleep, and then crawl out of her room on my hands and knees.

Robby was unbelievably good. He had been such an active child and so mischievous that I couldn't picture him staying in bed, but he cooperated with everything—except taking the daily streptomycin shots, and who would blame him for dreading them? The poor little fellow would get at the farthest end of the bed when the doctor walked in, and then I would hold him close while the needle sank into his already peppered rump. Then I would have to leave him sobbing to hold the baby while she got her shot.

The doctor suggested I give the shots and showed me how. I lasted three days at that job and came closer to cracking up than then at any other time.

Two weeks after the children had been put to bed, the two older ones were sent to the laboratory for a blood-sedimentation test. Don's was perfect so he was sent back to school. Sherry's test showed a slight infection but not enough to confine her to her bed, so she was allowed to stay downstairs and play quietly. Two weeks later the test was repeated and she was declared well enough to return to school.

TELEPHONE TALK

by Gene Adkisson, Manager

VOICE FOR THE VOICELESS

Last month in Telephone Talk I mentioned the successful launching of Echo, the communication satellite in orbit 1,000 miles above the earth.

Now I have news of still another product of communications research. It's a new artificial larynx to help people with impaired vocal chords to speak again.

This electronic larynx is really a "new voice" for people who have lost the use of their vocal chords. When held against the throat, this 7-ounce device (looks something like a flashlight) replaces the vibrations of normal vocal chords to produce speech. It is being offered on a non profit basis.

In an age of great scientific achievements such as space satellite communications, the Bell solar battery and transistors (all pioneered by Bell scientists), it's reassuring to know that telephone research has not overlooked human needs in the search for better communications services.

HOW ABOUT A FAMILY HARVEST?

Have you noticed the changes being made in the food markets lately? It seems to me that it is much easier to find certain items . . . fresh or frozen turkeys, pumpkins, cranberries, chestnuts and other Thanksgiving treats.

It looks like some of the biggest Fall harvests in Hamlin will be made around the dining room table. That's true in more ways than one. Because, in addition to the good things to eat and share, Thanksgiving has always been a great family day.

If all of your family live in Hamlin it's usually a simple matter to get together for Thanksgiving. If your family is scattered in different parts of the country, you can still "get together"—by telephone.

The cost is low, and if you place your long distance call station-to-station, instead of person-to-person, you can save one-third. Rates are even lower if you call after 6 p.m.

Why not plan to call and make this Thanksgiving a "family harvest?"

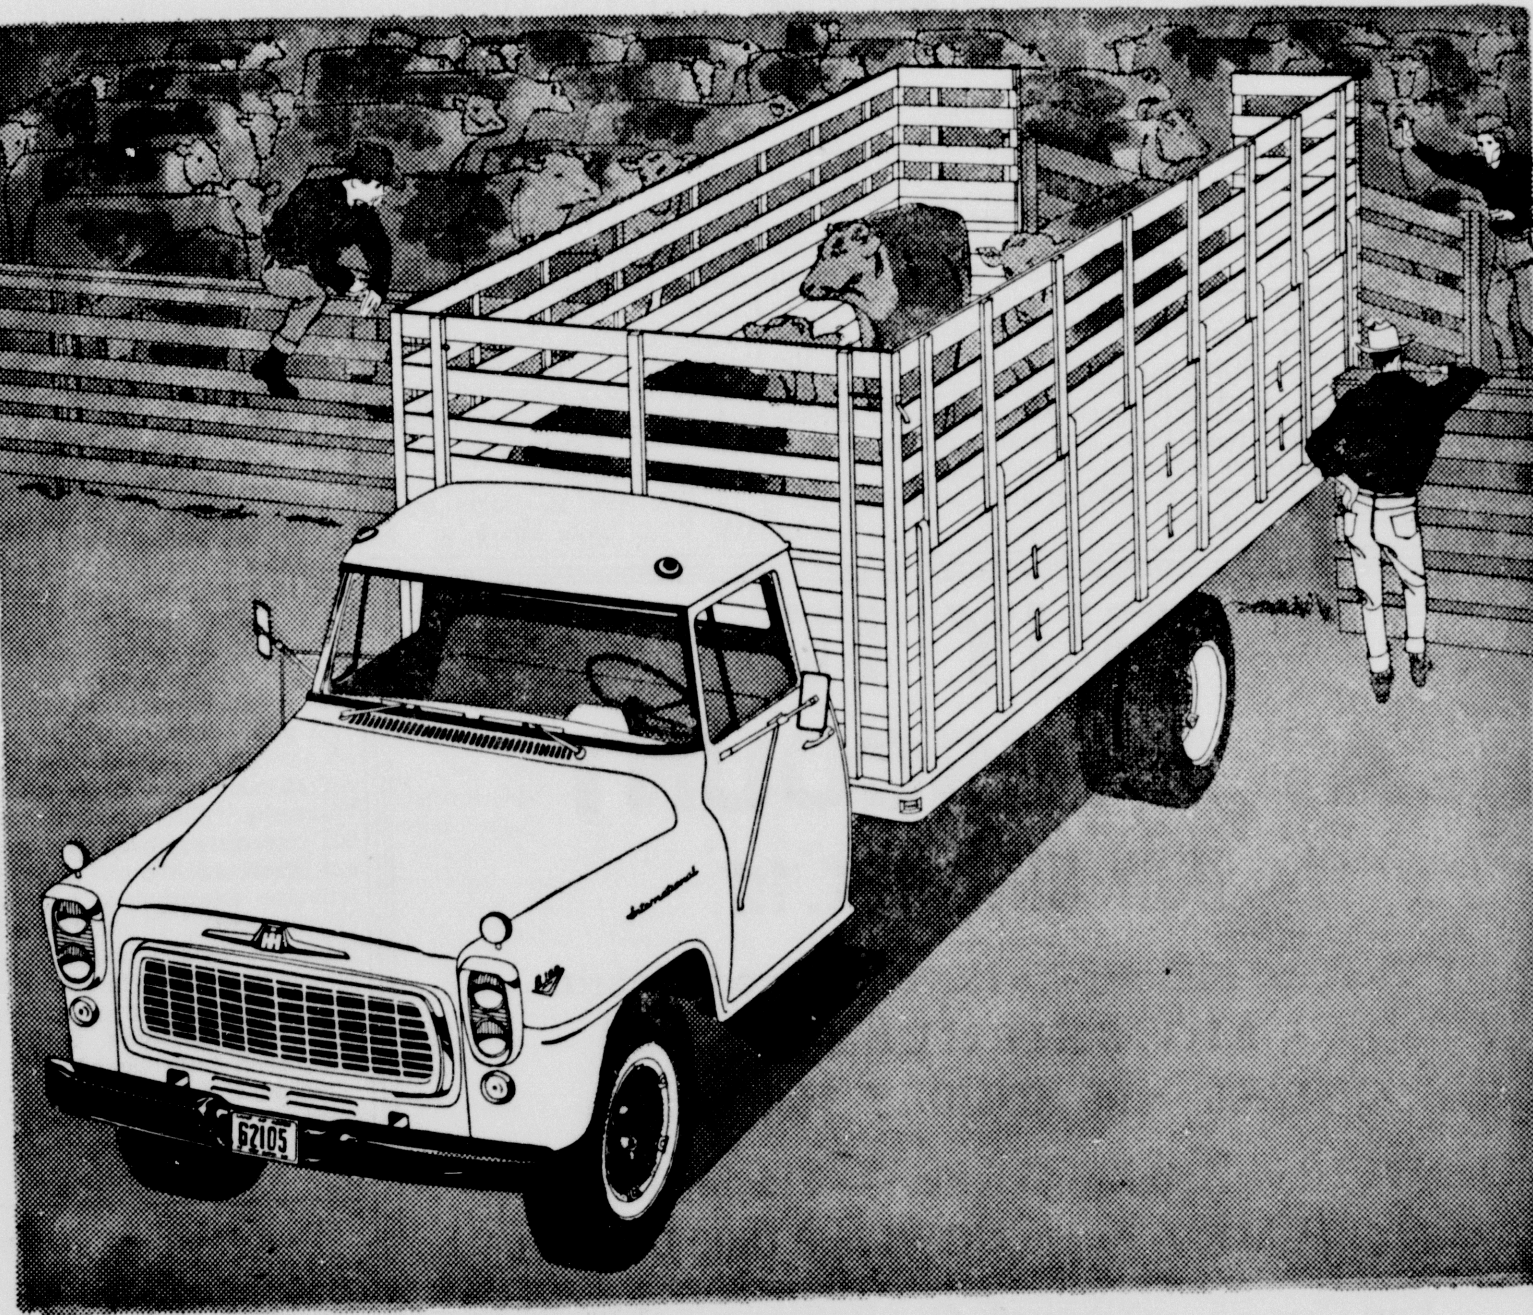

SCIENCE SHOW ON TELEVISION

In addition to the Telephone Hour, which brings you top artists in the field of music every other Friday evening on Channel 9 at 8 p.m., I'd like to remind you of our new science program.

The first of the new series, "Thread of Life," tells the story of how we inherit our many and varied characteristics. This 60 minute color program will be Friday, December 9, on Channel 9 at 8 p.m. I hope you'll be watching.

Call by number. It's twice as fast.

CONTROVERSIAL FILM, 'ELMER GANTRY' COMING HERE SUNDAY

The highly controversial film version of Sinclair Lewis' best-selling novel, "Elmer Gantry," will open Sunday at the Ferguson Theatre, through United Artists release. Burt Lancaster and Jean Simmons are starred in "Elmer Gantry" with Dean Jagger, Shirley Jones, Patti Page and Arthur Kennedy. The film is a Burt Lancaster-Richard Brooks production in Eastmancolor.

Lancaster portrays Elmer Gantry, the itinerant evangelist minister. Miss Simmons co-stars as Sister Sharon Falconer.

The set of "Elmer Gantry" was closed during the filming of the entire production, the screenplay guarded with strictest secrecy, full scripts being issued only to the principal players and top production personnel.

Lancaster and Brooks adopted the policy of secrecy just as Sinclair Lewis did when he wrote the novel in 1927. The Nobel Prize winning author, before he submitted the completed manuscript to the book's publisher, Harcourt and Brace, insisted that only the partners be allowed to read the novel, and then place it under lock and key until publication. "Elmer Gantry" brings to the screen "The Singing Rage," Miss Patti Page, who makes her motion picture debut as the choir leader of the traveling Evangelist troupe.

Shirley Jones was chiefly known as the sweet young singing star of such musicals as "Oklahoma," and "Carousel,"
